On February 1, 2016, the NFL announced that Thursday Night Football would be shared between CBS, NBC, and NFL Network for the 2016 and 2017 seasons. CBS and NBC would each air five games (resulting in a schedule of 10 games on broadcast TV in comparison to 8 under the previous deal), followed by an additional eight games exclusively on NFL Network to satisfy NFL Network's retransmission consent contracts with cable providers; the eight NFL Network exclusive games included six Thursday contests, a Sunday morning International Series contest, and a Christmas day game. As with the previous contract, all games will be simulcast by NFL Network.

Obviously, every year, whether you're the number one defense in the league or the number 32 defense in the league, you're always looking to add pieces and fill out your lineup card. That's what we're going to be working through this spring and through the draft and through free agency as well as developing the young players that we have here. This day and age in the NFL when you draft guys and you think they're worthy, you have to get them out on the field.

The BCS has been in place for 14 years now after being introduced to college football in 1998. The BCS functions by selecting the two highest BCS ranked teams play in the prestigious national championship game, while the other eight best teams face off in four individual bowl games all over the country.
