The Flames were previously linked to Ben Bishop and Marc Andre Fleury, two goaltenders that have outperformed Smith in recent seasons. But the prospects of either franchise being lapped in Vegas's inaugral season took a substantial hit when the Golden Knights left talent on the table in the expansion draft and when both the Coyotes and Canucks brought in legitimate NHL talent over the summer. Niklas Hjalmarsson and Jason Demers, and they were already further along in the restoration process that the Canucks now seem prepared to initiate. For that reason it's Vancouver with the best odds to challenge Vegas for the NHL's worst team.

The NBA is also different in that the same broadcasting crew stays with the same basketball team all season, as opposed to the NFL where my broadcast crew of Dick Stockton and John Lynch gets different teams every week. Although we study hard all week to learn those two football teams, you still don't know them as well as a basketball team that you're with all season. At the end of the day though my job is the same in the NFL or NBA: tell the stories that affect the players, coaches and the game; help bring the fans into the how and why of the game; share anecdotes that help the viewers know these teams or this team better.
