Barnes/Associated PressMultiple rookie wide receivers are in position to make large impacts around the league. The Tennessee Titans used the fifth overall pick to select Western Michigan's Corey Davis, who will instantly become Marcus Mariota's No. 1 option. The Los Angeles Chargers and Cincinnati Bengals also spent top 10 picks to improve their receiver corps. Yet the fourth wide receiver drafted, Zay Jones, could be more instrumental in the Buffalo Bills offense than any of the aforementioned first year targets. Unlike the other teams mentioned, the Bills are devoid of wide receiver talent.
