Rules are asymmetrical in regard to whether a team can score directly as a result of a penalty. The offensive team cannot do so; if a foul that is penalized from the spot of the foul is called on the defense in its own end zone, the ball is placed on either the one yard line or the two yard line, and the offense must try to score from there. However, penalties called on the offense in its own end zone can result in the defense scoring a two point safety.
