If I was looking for either a backup qb or a future starter, I would see his action as a positive. A quarterback has to be a leader and leaders are expected to survive tough times. That note tells me he did survive and why. We can measure air pressure to help us predict weather conditions around the world. Temperature also affects air pressure because air contracts when it cools and expands when it is heated. So if air above a region of Earth cools, it does not extend to as high an altitude as the surrounding air.
