The news that mid term exams have been cancelled in some primary schools recently has sparked quite a few controversies. Some people regard it as a big step in educational reform, while others question whether it is on the right track. Parents, teachers and students, the three parts involved, have all reacted a little bit pessimistically toward the new policy.

Now it's the NFC West leading upstarts against the NFC East reigning champions. Welcome Jared Goff to the realm of viable starting quarterbacks. He will get more help from Todd Gurley, but he's still not a better second year passer than Dak Prescott.
