The form of Jay Cutler suggests the Bears have the edge but both of these defences are conceding more than 27 points per game this year, meaning there will be opportunities for both QBs to make game changing plays. If Detroit don't win this game, you wonder when they'll snap their losing streak but, despite holding home field advantage, their play doesn't inspire any confidence right now, no matter what the opposition. Appears to be in a state of disarray.
