12 in Florida.[6] He was ranked as the No. 6 wide receiver and the No. 12 pass catcher in the nation and 86th overall prospect.[8] He chose over Florida State, Miami, and Ohio State, among others. I have an honest (and maybe dumb) question, she claimed sexual assault, and she claimed that Rollo was going to cover the whole thing up, so why still file a complain in the University, wouldn the most appropriate way to go was to go to the police and file a report? The police would have at least investigated and booked Manning pending charges. I agree that probably the University was going to cover everything up, but at least the police would have gave the victim the benefit of the doubt. Then, in 2002 (6 years later when the statute of limitations was probably still valid) with all the witness and evidence on her favor, why not filed a complain then? She had the monster that destroyed her life, she had the key witness backing her up, so why not pursue criminal action then?
