A good long term solution would be to correct the tags for a large corpus of recipes and train on the corrected data, that way you solve the problem of mismatch between the training and testing data. This is, however, a huge amount of work. Ideally, a corpus with a lot of imperatives would already exist; my research group has looked into this and we have not found a suitable one, although we are in the process of producing one..

In college football and the NFL, a conversion safety could also be scored by the defense.[22] To accomplish this, the team attempting the try would have to retreat all the way back to its own end zone. This is wildly implausible; it has been hypothesized that, perhaps, such a scenario would involve a turnover on a two point conversion attempt, followed by a defensive player fumbling while en route to the attempting team's end zone, with the attempting team finally recovering the ball and downing it in its end zone. The other possible scenario in which this could happen is if the snap on an extra point kick attempt is wildly errant and the kicking team repeatedly bats the ball toward its end zone to avoid the defense recovering and returning it (while not being able to recover it themselves or bat the ball out of bounds).
