I think they're moving on to host Super Bowl LII. Early in the fourth quarter, Pittsburgh defensive end Stephon Tuitt recovered a fumble from running back Justin Forsett on the Ravens' 45 yard line. Roethlisberger completed a 44 yard pass to Brown on the next play, and eventually got the ball into the end zone with a 6 yard toss to Bryant. Their two point conversion attempt failed, but the Steelers had cut their deficit to one score at 20 15.

The Titans seem like the new standard in the AFC South, and I think they'll want to show that Sunday. You have to be impressed by Deshaun Watson last week, but he's still a rookie and he's going to have his struggles. The Texans are a big hump for the Titans to get over if they want to win the division, considering they've lost five of their last six to Houston according to OddsShark.
