It was the last time the Thunder would threaten the rest of the way. Head Coach Billy Donovan's club never got closer than seven after that Blazers burst, and Portland really poured it on in the fourth quarter, when Shabazz Napier, starting in place of Damian Lillard, ripped off nine straight points while the Thunder managed just two missing 4 of 5 sheldon richardson jersey shots during the stretch. In general, this was a game where the Thunder's defense didn't dictate the action and force its opponent where it wanted, but rather seemed to chase the ball throughout possessions, falling a step behind with each drive or pass. Difficult, contested shots that didn't drop in the first quarter for the Blazers suddenly fell, as CJ McCollum seemed to hit from everywhere on the floor, and Nurkic knocked down jumpers too, showing his outside touch. With defense, it is not going to be one thing," Donovan explained.
