I don think people are assholes when they say no to the trade, they might not see the trade the same as the players trading it, and as a result just click no because that the safer option. Even if your league is full of good guys, I still let your judgement be the final say. They elected you commish which means they trust you and they should trust that you are running the league fairly. This trade wouldn go through in my league, with me being commissioner. First off Team X would have to anthony johnson jersey justify how he believes his team will be better off with RG3 over Peyton. Speaking as if this trade occurred last season, there would be no way to justify it. Even if Team X Team Y weren colluding, circumstances in this situation need to be taken into consideration.
