Since the team's first season in 1961, the Vikings have had one of the highest winning percentages in the NFL.[10] As of 2017, they have won at least three games in every season except in 1962, and are one of only six NFL teams to win at least 15 games in a regular season. The Vikings have won one NFL Championship, in 1969, before the league's merger with the American Football League (AFL). Since the league merger in 1970, they have qualified for the playoffs 27 times, third most in the league.

And Seahawks quarterback Russell Wilson ran for 100 yards again, continuing an amazing year he having of making plays with his feet. Wilson now has three games this season of 100 or more yards rushing and 100 or more yards passing. How extraordinary is that? Consider this: In the entire decade of the 1980s, only one NFL player topped 100 yards rushing and 100 yards passing in the same game (Randall Cunningham in 1986).

Cedric Benson NFL career did not get off to the start that we expected. But since the standout from Texas signed with Cincinnati, Benson has established himself as a workhorse and a very reliable fantasy option. After racking up 610 yards in the second half of the 2008 season, Benson established career highs last season with 1251 yards and six touchdowns despite missing three games to injury.
