Hix, Gayler and Lindsey Bareham's A Celebration of Soup all recommend soaking the peas overnight, while Davis gives them a mere half hour and Tom Norrington Davies doesn't bother in his book, Just Like Mother Used to Make. In fact, dried peas don't really need soaking at all, but doing so while you make the stock will speed up the cooking time somewhat. (More important in this regard is the age of the peas concerned, but as the usual rules about buying from somewhere with a high turnover of stock probably doesn't apply in this case, you'll just have to cross your fingers and hope for the best.).

But after seven years of dodging her hometown, she's only back in Charleston for seven days to celebrate her sister's wedding. She won't let her overbearing family or her run in with Boone rattle her though rattling her is obviously Boone's primary objective. Boone is her past and her past is behind her, a mere speck in the rearview.
